DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 11,20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by either Ferguson et al or Burstedt. Ferguson et al (column 15, last paragraph) and Burstedt both show the control of the gap setting in a gyratory crusher via a load sensor. It is inherent or common sense that following the reduction of a set amount of material, and having the gap set based on the load as noted above, the following material would be crushed using the final gap of the previous load.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 11-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either Ferguson et al or Burstedt. As noted above, both patents show a gyratory crusher having a gap adjustment based on a load sensor. This is the heart of applicants invention. The remaining limitations would have been obvious design choices only. For example, clearly one skilled in the art would realize it was not necessary to change the gap once a new load is started i.e. the gap is based on wear and why would the gap be changed from load to load if the same particle size was desired? Also, the use of time periods in sensors is well known in the art and of no patentable merit.
